FAULT TOLERANT STATIC TIMING ANALYSIS

ABSTRACT

A method and system for performing fault tolerant static timing analysis for an electronic network. A composite timing graph is generated by making K + 1 copies of the zero-defect timing graph of the network, where K is a predetermined maximum number of defects present on a path of the network, and static timing analysis is performed on the composite timing graph.